TRIVALENT NOTES

SPECIAL ISSUE, March 2019

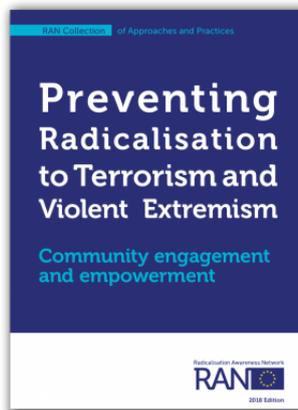

We are pleased to announce that a new series of “Trivalent Notes” (Trivalent project newsletter) is launched starting from this special issue, with an aim to collect contributions and documentation on prevention of violent extremism.

More precisely our aim is finalised to offer, during all the project life period, a reasoned bibliography of texts and materials for an in-depth analysis of aspects concerning policies and measures suitable to that end, along three main research directions of Trivalent project: predict to prevent; communicate to prevent; good policing and community engagement to prevent (Trivalent trilogy).

In this way we aim to reach altogether the public of officials, professionals, experts, academics, policy makers, community representatives, and stakeholders by and large, by providing a regularly updated documentation, classified and selected for such purpose, spread over through the Trivalent newsletter mailing lists, and freely available on Trivalent website.

This first SPECIAL ISSUE collects four documents.

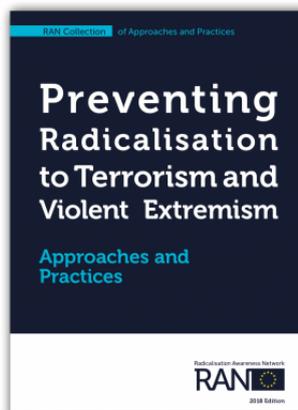

Two are from the Radicalisation Awareness Network (RAN):

Preventing Radicalisation to Terrorism and Violent Extremism Community engagement and empowerment is about an overview on the “central role” that communities play in the prevention of extremism and radicalisation, a role which however requires “to be reinforced and supported as a matter of priority and in a sustainable manner”;

Preventing Radicalisation to Terrorism and Violent Extremism Approaches and Practices is about professional skills, organisational challenges and operational attitudes of “first-line practitioners working with vulnerable individuals or groups at risk of radicalisation in order to ensure that they are well equipped to detect and to respond to signs of potential or imminent radicalisation”, and based on the assumption that, nowadays, “prevent efforts are needed more than ever before”.

One by the High-Level Commission Expert Group on Radicalisation (HLCEG-R):

Final Report

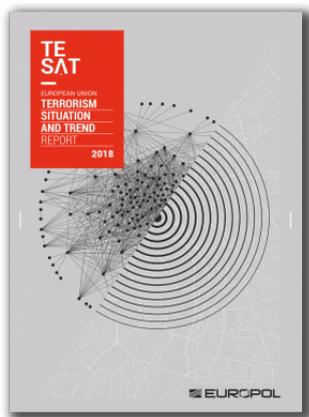

18 May 2018 - is about trends and challenges of radicalisation in the European Union, pointing to violent extremism and terrorism as a phenomenon taking place at an alarming speed and scale, and extended to the EU as a whole, presenting recommendations of a number of highly sensible policy areas.
